ADVANCED ENGLISH

This class meets once a week for two periods.

Class activities are usually focused around a newspaper article, discussion of it, and some connected writing assignment. Attention is paid to the language used in different situations, especially academic English versus 'general' English.

Students will be asked to choose materials to work with independently. This allows students to address areas of special interest, particular weakness, etc.

The syllabus is somewhat flexible, and if students have special requests, it may be possible to work them into the syllabus.

If there is enough demand for an intermediate-level course and if the teachers' teaching load permits, it may be possible to arrange an intermediate class also. If not, there is the possibility of joining English classes for Hungarian students.
